TRANSLATED TITLE OF THE CERTIFICATE (EN) ⁽²⁾*Certificate of Apprenticeship "Cosmetics (Cosmetology)" (f/m)⁽²⁾ This translation has no legal status.3. PROFILE OF SKILLS AND COMPETENCES*Specialist areas of competence:*Basics of cosmetics

In his/her work, the specialist in cosmetics (cosmetology) observes the principles of anatomy, physiology and pathology specific to the profession, particularly in relation to the skin. He/she recognises different skin types and skin conditions, such as seborrhoeic and photodamaged skin, and selects cosmetic treatments based on this assessment. Based on his/her expertise in the field of skin, vascular, tissue and body hair changes as well as changes to fingernails, he/she adapts cosmetic treatments to the individual needs of his/her clients. In this regard, he/she records medical histories as part of cosmetic work, assesses the skin from a cosmetic perspective and takes indications and contraindications into account. He/she documents the obtained information properly.

Cosmetic work

The specialist in cosmetics (cosmetology) cares for the skin and carries out cosmetic treatments, particularly on the face, throat, neck and cleavage, in accordance with the rules of practice relevant to the profession. Here he/she researches new developments and applies current trends in the field of cosmetics. The specialist prepares the equipment required for the upcoming cosmetic work, taking into account necessary measures such as disinfection or sterilisation. He/she helps draw up hygiene plans applied in the company and documents the relevant information. Based on the cosmetic areas of application, effects on the human body, cosmetic indications and contraindications, he/she selects and applies preventive, decorative, improving, maintaining and caring products, preparations and active ingredients.

During cosmetic work, the skin is cleansed with cleansing products and equipment, impurities are removed and compresses are applied. The specialist deals with different skin types and conditions. For cosmetic purposes, he/she carries out various cosmetic treatments on the face, throat and cleavage using ampoules, serums, packs, modelling and masks. The specialist carries out cosmetic treatments using equipment and works with physical beauty care products. He/she also carries out nourishing, firming and shaping full-body treatments.

Based on his/her specialist knowledge of colour and style advice, colour harmonies and colour contrasts, the specialist creates decorative cosmetics for different occasions and applies special make-up techniques. This means he/she creates day and evening make-up as well as fantasy make-up. As part of cosmetic treatments, he/she grooms, shapes and colours brows and eyelashes and makes short-term hair changes. If necessary, he/she removes hair from the entire body using various hair removal methods. During a manicure, the specialist takes care of hands and nails. He/she carries out cosmetic hand and arm treatments as well as hand massages. He/she also paints and designs fingernails according to customers' wishes and carries out nail modelling and nail designs.

When carrying out work, the specialist ensures the personal well-being of customers and complies with the necessary protective measures and hygiene requirements.

Customer advice and sales

The specialist in cosmetics (cosmetology) advises customers on cosmetics issues based on their requirements and needs and explains the importance of behavioural measures to maintain cosmetic treatment results. He/she asks customers about their needs and wishes, informs them about the services on offer and conducts sales talks. If required, the specialist can also carry out simple advisory discussions in English. If there are any complaints and claims, he/she reacts appropriately and takes steps to resolve conflict. The specialist deals with administrative tasks in the area of customer management, such as coordinating customer appointments, and is involved in carrying out advertising and sales promotion measures for the company. He/she also processes payment transactions in compliance with the associated security measures, calculates the daily turnover and closes the cash desk.

Interdisciplinary areas of competence:

- Working in an operational and professional environment
- Quality oriented, safe and sustainable work
- Digital work
